

LOVE, CARE AND RESPECT FOR NEIGHBOURS

Millions of people including doctors, nurses, paramedics, army, police, volunteers, and the key workers put their lives at risk by serving us during the unprecedented times of the COVID-19. Many people lost their lives in saving our lives. This is a time to appreciate those who helped us and console with those who lost their loved ones by showing our kind attitude and saying a good word to them.

Let us join hands together in promoting love, care and respect for the people around us, our permanent and temporary neighbours.

We have two types of neighbours in life; one who live with or around us permanently and our temporary neighbours such as colleagues at work, classmates at school; playmates, team members, people share public places with us and our fellow passengers who travel with us on the same bus, train, plane etc.
